OBJET D'ART. The 1968 Dodge Coronet station wagon coated with sand and left, legally parked, in the Mac-Millan Wharf municipal parking lot since mid-June, was towed away this week, but not by order of police. Jay Critchley, who covered the car with sand in his back yard, paid for a sticker, plates and eventually a lawyer to ensure that the car would be allowed to remain prominently displayed near the parking lot entrance, has decided to retire his creation for the winter.
