Repairs Scheduled at Breakwater

This is the Provincetown Harbor West End breakwater, which Army Engineers will repair. Shown in this picture, taken from the West End traffic circle, is the breakwater, with the break in the structure, nearest the shore, depicting water pouring through on a rising tide. The water pours through this gap, and several other gaps, with a terrific speed, both on incoming and outgoing tides. During the Summer, unsuspecting visitors wander out and are stranded.

Army Invites Bids to Plug Sea Wall Gaps

PROVINCETOWN, Nov. 9 — Sealed bids in duplicate for repairs to the West End breakwater will be received until 2:30 p.m. Nov. 28 in Boston, Town Manager James V. Coyne Jr. announced today.

Provincetown selectmen received notification of the invitation for bids to repair gaps in the long breakwater from the Office of the Division Engineer, Corp of Engineers, New England Division.

The bids will be received at the Engineers Office, 150 Causeway Street, Boston, until the specified time and then will be publicly opened, the notice said.

The Government has made $100,000 available for repairs to the breakwater.
